

Project ACCESS Presents:

Bullying

And

Individuals with ASD

We have all been bullied, and probably have been a bully sometime in our lives. However, individuals on the Autism Spectrum (ASD) are especially vulnerable for bullying and have few skills to defend themselves. This workshop looks at strategies for all of us: strategies for those with ASD to learn to avoid/respond to bullies; strategies for professionals to prevent/respond to bullying; and strategies for parents to help bully proof their homes, neighborhoods, and schools.

Friday, February 26, 2010

Truman State Office Building

Presenter: Julie Donnelly, Ph.D

Questions? Call toll free: 866-481-3841 or projectaccess@missouristate.edu

Or visit our website: www.education.missouristate.edu/access